New Vice President and Project Executive, Joe Williams Joins Commodore

Brings over 30 years of Experience working with Massachusetts' Prominent Health Care Facilities

(Newton, MA)—July 28, 2008—Commodore Builders is pleased to announce that Joe Williams has joined its team as a Vice President and Project Executive. He brings over 30 years of experience in the health care market. After 10 years at Vappi Construction and 25 years leading the health care focus at Macomber Builders, Williams will work closely with Commodore's executive team to lead the roll-out of a focused health care market plan.

"Joe is an industry veteran and a proven operational leader in the health care sector," said Joe Albanese, president and founder, Commodore Builders. "This addition to our team is both professionally exciting and personally gratifying for me."

When Williams joined the George B.H. Macomber Company, he worked for Albanese's late father Charlie. Years later, while Williams was building 155 Federal Street in Boston, the younger Albanese joined his team as a field engineer. Twelve years later, they would share executive responsibilities at Macomber.

"The best compliment you can get is to be called back by a client to do another project. That's happened throughout my career and now I'm eager to work with the Commodore team to make that happen again," said Williams. "I can't think of a better way to complete my career than in a place where I have the opportunity to contribute to the growth and success of a company I have such a deep connection with."

Throughout his life-long career in healthcare, Williams has worked with teams putting in place more than one billion dollars of health care facilities, including more than two dozen Harvard Community Health Plan projects, Baystate Ambulatory Care and Ambulatory Surgery Centers, Leominster Hospital, Children's Hospital Clinical Tower and Food Services, Faulkner Hospital, South Shore Hospital, Mass Eye and Ear, Boston

City Hospital, including award winning projects at Baystate Medical Cancer Care Center in Springfield and UMass Memorial Hospital in Worcester.
